HARRISBURG (AP) — The state's two big farm organizations and the association representing township supervisors banded together Thursday in an effort to defeat the constitutional convention question on the Nov. 5 ballot.

John Scott, master of the Pennsylvania State Grange, personally delivered to capitol newsmen a release announcing the formation of "Committee to Save Our Constitution."

H. A. Thomson, secretary emeritus of the Pennsylvania State Association of Township Supervisors, was chosen president.

Hollis A. Hatfield, administrative secretary of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association, was named secretary and Scott, treasurer.

New Fighting Rocks Algeria

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Violent new fighting was reported Thursday in the undeclared desert war between Algeria and Morocco and peace talks were suspended.

Algerian negotiator H'ammed Yazid flew back to Algiers from Marrakech, Morocco, to report to President Ahmed Ben Bella. Moves toward a cease-fire had at least temporarily fizzled.

Ben Bella and Foreign Minister Abdel Aziz Bouteflika, who had been scheduled to leave Friday for New York to attend the U.N. General Assembly meeting, called off their trip.

Sentry Satellite Sent Into Orbit

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — One of two sentry satellites designed to detect nuclear explosions in outer space was jockeyed into a planned circular orbit about 57,000 miles high Thursday.

The satellite was one of three — including a "pygmy" hitchhiker to measure radiation — rocketed into orbit Wednesday night by the same Atlas-Agena booster.

Nearly 18 hours after launching, a radio signal was beamed from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., to fire a solid-fuel rocket aboard one of the twin detection satellites to arrest it at the high-altitude station.

President Signs Defense Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy signed a defense appropriation bill Thursday $1.5 billion less than he originally asked and the Defense Department indicated it is already pruning its money requests for next year.

The bill signed into law by the President calls for an outlay of $47.2 billion.

Tito Sees JFK

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Tito of Yugoslavia flew in for a fast round of East-West talks with President Kennedy Thursday and then flew right out again.

It may have been the quickest visit ever paid this capital by the head of a foreign state but both sides agreed the talks were friendly and cordial and "characterized by frank discussion."

A total of 6.8 million shares changed hands, highest since 7.2 million were traded Sept. 6. Volume Wednesday was 5.6 million shares.

For the second day in a row, the Dow Jones average of 30 stocks climbed to a new all-time peak, gaining 2.32 to 750.77.

Scranton Open To 'Pure, Honest' GOP Draft

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Scranton said Thursday he is open to a "pure and honest" draft as a compromise choice for the Republican Party's Presidential nomination.

Describing drafts as improbabilities in modern politics, Scranton said he would discourage such a development in his case if it were to take place.

But he did not say he would try to stop such a draft. Rather, he took the position he would decline to encourage it and would show no interest in it.

"I think the whole questions about drafts are academic questions. I do not believe that a pure and honest draft is forthcoming in modern political circumstances," he told his weekly news conference.

"I would say if there were such, I probably would accept it and I think any other person who has responsibilities would do likewise. I do not expect it and I'm doing everything I can to see to it that one does not take place."

Scranton included in his remarks the possibility of becoming a compromise choice in the event of a deadlock at the GOP nominating convention in San Francisco next year.

Scranton often has been mentioned speculatively as a prime prospect as a compromise choice in the event of a deadlock.

Scranton met for about an hour with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

State Police Freed From Political Gifts

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Scranton told state policemen Thursday to disregard invitations being circulated among state employees to join a Republican fund-raising club which the governor heads as president.

In a memorandum to Col. E. Wilson Purdy, state police commissioner, the governor said: "I have been informed that, through an error at the Republican State Committee, members of the state police were included in a mailing inviting membership in the Pennsylvania Republican Club."

"The club, which asks for annual dues of $5 to $100 or more, has been inviting the 77,280 state employees under governor's jurisdiction to join in helping elect a Republican president next year."

(Democratic State Chairman Otis B. Morse said he views the invitations as (macing by indirect pressure.)

Ike Favors Gradual Civil Rights Action

HARRISBURG (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said Thursday he would favor piecemeal enactment of civil rights legislation rather than an all-inclusive package risking defeat.

The general told a news conference that the package approach would lead to what he termed "the sum of the negatives" in opposition.

"I don't think the federal government is pushing too hard on civil rights legislation," Eisenhower said. "But I am concerned that they are trying to put into one bill all of the corrective measures."

Also, Eisenhower said he did not feel that civil rights legislation will penalize majorities in favor of minority groups "as long as the bill deals with all of us."

Eisenhower made the 35-mile

The governor said politics was discussed but that "we didn't get into anything personal."

"He talked to me about the kind of persons that he thought we ought to be thinking about and why, but they were generalizations, nothing specific," Scranton said.

Goldwater Dinner

Scranton was asked by newsmen about the appearance of Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., at a Pennsylvania Republican $100-a-plate fund-raising dinner at Hershey a week ago and published reports that it was unsuccessful.

"I thought people were very happy to have him," Scranton replied, "and showed it."

Hunting Ban

In other press conference subjects:

Drought—"I think we'd better leave it at that," Scranton said in reply to whether he contemplated new dates for fishing and game seasons in view of his proclamation earlier in the day banning hunting and fishing because of the critical drought situation. "I don't want to until it's perfectly safe," he said.

Constitutional revision—"I'm most pessimistic about the possibility of doing it by amendments in stages," Scranton said about the advantages of a convention to rewrite the state's 80-year-old constitution over piecemeal amendment.

Pennsylvania voters are to decide Nov. 5 whether to authorize a convention.

Popular With People

Samplings of opinions, Scranton said, indicate the convention question "apparently is popular with the people, but not with grass roots politicians."

Pennsylvania-New York Central Railroad merger—"The administration's decision on a position to take on the merger of the two big railroads 'won't be for a little while yet,'" Scranton said. "There are some variations of opinion among key people in his administration on the subject, he said, but not open division."

No Macing

Fund-raising among state employees—Scranton said he would be happy to give the cooperation of his administration to GOP fund-raising activities among state employees provided contributions were obtained voluntarily and people weren't "hit over the head" to contribute.

Lackawanna County politics—On reports that a key aide, William Keisling, was being sent on a political fence-mending tour of Lackawanna County while on the state's payroll, Scranton said: "I don't think I'd choose Mr. Keisling for mending any political fences." Keisling, assistant to Scranton, is from the city of Scranton.

Inside The Record

trip from his Gettysburg farm to meet with Gov. Scranton to discuss Pennsylvania industrial development. Eisenhower is honorary chairman of the governor's Committee of 100,000 for Pennsylvania Industrial Development. The visit was the general's first to the Pennsylvania governor's office.

50-Minute Talk

The general and Scranton met with newsmen following a 50-minute conference between them. Eisenhower, in high spirits, conceded with a flash of his famous grin that he and Scranton talked "a little politics."

Turning to state economics, Eisenhower said his selection of Pennsylvania for residence is the best evidence he can give of his faith in the Keystone State's economic future.

State Bans Hunting, Fishing As Forest Fire Danger Grows

$100 Fine Set For Hunting, Fishing

HARRISBURG (AP) — M. J. Golden, executive director of the Game Commission, said Gov. Scranton's proclamation banning all hunting and fishing makes it unlawful for any person to:

"Hunt any wild bird or animal, protected or unprotected. The present open seasons on mourning doves, waterfowl, Wilson's snipes, rails and gallinules, woodcock and deer with bow and arrow are temporarily closed. It is also unlawful to hunt any unprotected bird or animal, such as crows, foxes, raccoons, woodchuck, skunks or opossums.

"Trap for any animal.

"Give field training to dogs.

"Hold field trials.

"Hunt on regulated shooting grounds."

Golden said all game protectors will enforce the proclamation. They also have stepped up patrols to assist in fire detection and prevention.

Albert M. Day, executive director of the Fish Commission, said there are "absolutely no exceptions" to the fishing ban.

Both Day and Golden said the law does not provide for any refunds of license fees and that there will be none.

Penalty for violation of the ban is $100.

Nhu Says CIA Urged Coup; U.S. Cuts Some Saigon Aid

By William L. Ryan

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Ngo Dinh Nhu, powerful and controversial brother of South Viet Nam's president, says Buddhists under interrogation have identified U.S. Central Intelligence Agents and other Americans who constantly prodded them to attempt to overthrow the government.

Nhu said CIA agents "may have received orders to do it against their will."

"Perhaps because they didn't like the orders they didn't carry them out very successfully," Nhu added with an amiable smile.

Nhu spoke to a group of visiting foreign correspondents Thursday at Gia Long Palace. President Ngo Dinh Diem's brother talked 2½ hours about what he called the "mess" in South Viet Nam.

Speaking of the CIA, Nhu said: "One thing I don't understand is why some CIA agents were involved in the Buddhist affair."

Buddhist Clash

He was referring to the government clash with Buddhists in the wake of Buddhist protests of discrimination and a series of ritual suicides by fire.

"I don't know whether they received their instructions from higher up. I must say until the Buddhist affair broke, CIA played an important part in making a winning program" against Viet Cong Communist guerrillas.

Nhu did not blame top levels of CIA for what went on, but said "it really was suicidal to destroy what was so promising" in the anti-Communist program.

"For that reason I don't believe at all that chiefs of CIA were responsible for the mess here in Viet Nam," he added.

Nhu said "it is incomprehensible" why CIA, having helped launch the strategic hamlet program to thwart Communists, should reverse its attitude.

Vietnamese Rout Small Red Band

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A Communist band which chose to camp in a rice paddy area only 15 miles west of Saigon got a surprise from the U.S. Thursday.

U.S. helicopters landed 60 South Vietnamese troops for an attack on the Viet Cong guerrillas while other helicopters flew air support.

The troops captured 12 guerrillas. They said they killed five others and wounded a dozen.

Officials said there were no casualties among the Vietnamese and American raiders, though one of the helicopters was hit six times by Communist ground fire and one bullet ripped through the fuselage of another.

A government source said Communist mines planted in a road 60 miles north of Saigon killed four Vietnamese soldiers and wounded nine of a military convoy Wednesday.

Two Communist platoons simultaneously attacked two

Macmillan Favors Home As Successor

LONDON (AP) — A high government source reported that Harold Macmillan will resign as prime minister Friday and nominate Foreign Secretary Lord Home, 60, to succeed him.

To take over the government, Lord Home presumably would have to quit the House of Lords and become a commoner as is permitted under a law adopted this year.

Selection of the 14th Earl of Home to lead the Conservative government in preference to Deputy Prime Minister Richard Austen Butler would represent a final and sensational victory in the political career of Macmillan, 69.

The old prime minister battled to the end at his sickbed to thwart Butler, the man he nosed out when he took office in 1957.

The culmination seemed certain to touch off one of the biggest political storms in Britain's postwar history.

Ever since Macmillan was hurried to a hospital 11 days ago suffering from a painful bladder and prostate ailment he appeared to have done all in his power to block Butler from the premiership.

Their animosity dates from pre-war years when Macmillan resented Butler's support of appeasement policies of Neville Chamberlain's government in the Hitler era.

It looked as though Home had won the race for the Conservative party leadership not because he was the most favored candidate but because he had the fewest political enemies within the Tory hierarchy and among the Tory rank and file.

Besides Butler, other contenders for the succession were Lord Hailsham, minister of science, and Reginald Maudling, chancellor of the exchequer.

A day of dramatic encounters reached its climax around midnight, when a member of the government reported that Home had emerged as the Conservative party's choice for the succession.

By Malcolm W. Browne

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The United States has lighted the fuse of an economic time bomb under President Ngo Dinh Diem's regime, but the bomb may never go off.

Since Aug. 21, America has halted its commercial import program, at least partly to show indignation over the smashing of Buddhist pagodas by government police that day.

The program represents about half the total economic aid the United States pours into South Viet Nam. Indirectly it pays about 70 per cent of the defense budget.

If the Saigon government starts dipping into dollar reserves to offset the loss of American aid, the nation will exhaust those reserves in about one year, U.S. aid mission officials estimate. That could mean a general economic collapse, and possibly the end of the Diem government.

Kennedy Decision

Whether the aid program will be resumed is largely up to President Kennedy. It has not formally ended. U.S. officials say it has been suspended pending a policy review.

The idea is to bring pressure on the Diem government to make political changes.

In a general way, America would like to see a loosening of the one-family rule of Ngo Diem and his brothers and sister-in-law.

Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge feels the purely military aspects of the war with the Communists are now less important than other factors, mostly political in character.

Some Vietnamese opposition leaders have said that if only America would stop sending aid to the Diem government, military leaders would carry out a coup and set up a new government.

"If that were true," Lodge said this week, "I think we would have seen something after the commercial import program was stopped in August. So far, nothing has happened."

South Viet Nam's reserve actually increased after the U.S. aid cut. The nation sold rice and other commodities to fill the treasury. Experts say this trend cannot continue.

In theory, the economic pressure should become intense soon. But American economists say the lever is bound to be less than 100 per cent effective.

Good Morning!

You can say this for those ready mixes. The next generation isn't going to have any trouble making cakes like mother used to make.

More Communities Run Out Of Water

HARRISBURG (AP) Gov. Scranton banned Thursday all hunting and fishing, effective at noon Friday, as the threat of fires in Pennsylvania's parched woodlands grew more critical.

Four more communities went on emergency water supplies as the state's second straight drought season continued without immediate hope of relief.

There have been 18 consecutive days without appreciable rain, according to the U.S. Weather Bureau here.

The governor's ban on hunting and fishing, without exceptions, is an extension of his proclamation of Tuesday prohibiting smoking and camp or rubbing fires in or within 200 feet of any woodland.

The penalty for violation of the ban is $100.

A statement by the governor said the ban was issued after consultation with Forests and Waters Secretary Maurice K. Goddard, Game Commission Secretary M. J. Golden and Fish Commission Secretary Albert M. Day.

The action was taken because of "the increased severity of the danger to our forests and other natural resources, occasioned by the extreme danger from forest fires now existing," said the governor.

Golden and Day both said they regretted suspension of the hunting and fishing seasons. Both added that there are no exceptions to the ban, but that some might be considered later.

"We are extremely sorry," said Golden, "but on the other hand we have a lot of game lands to preserve for the future and we don't want to jeopardize it just for the sake of one season."

More than half of Pennsylvania's total land area is forested, totaling more than 15 million acres.

The proclamation also closes all state forest and park lands to the public.

At a news conference later the governor said there are no plans to reschedule the fishing and game seasons.

(The bow-and-arrow season for deer now underway ends Oct. 30. The small game season was scheduled to begin Nov. 2.)

Scranton said no decision on resumption of the seasons would be made "until we know we are safe." He added:

"It is also most important that the people conserve water."

The governor said that motorists tossing cigarettes or cigars from vehicles would be subject to prosecution under the state's Litterbug Law. There is no specific ban on tossing cigarettes or cigars from vehicles.

Fish, game and forest wardens will cooperate in enforcing the proclamation and the anti-litterbug law.

Goddard said the ban decision was made because 42 new fires broke out Wednesday and 35 on Tuesday.

As of Wednesday evening there were an estimated 80 forest fires either uncontrolled or still burning inside the fire lines in Pennsylvania," said Goddard, adding:

"Most of these fires, burning deep into the ground, cannot be extinguished due to the scarcity of water or because adequate water supplies cannot be delivered to the fires, many of them in inaccessible mountain areas."

Goddard said the real danger lies in the possible increase in wind velocities, adding:

"Strong winds could fan the existing fires and send them out of control again."

The secretary said the high number of fires is taxing the department's resources.

Samuel S. Cobb, chief of forest protection, said "a couple of thousand men" are now engaged in fighting the blazes. Three airplanes are being used to dump water.

In addition to the regular department staff, there are part-time volunteer wardens who are paid $125 hourly, volunteer crewmen paid $1.00 and pickup help who are paid .75 cents.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said there is no relief in sight for at least the next 24 to 30 hours.

Communities going on emergency water supplies as reported by the Health Department, are: West Chester; Cornwall, Lebanon County; Tower City, Dauphin County; and Spring Grove, York County.

Pocono Woods Will Be Closed At Noon Today

STROUDSBURG — Game protectors and rangers from the State Dept. of Forests and Waters will move into Monroe and Pike County woods today to enforce a ban against hunting, fishing or starting fires ordered by Gov. William W. Scranton.

John Doebling, district game protector, said last night his men have been ordered to enforce the ban.

Such employees of the Forests and Waters Dept. as can be spared from fire fighting will also participate.

Gerald R. Robinson, district forester, said last night all forest roads, including those leading into state parks, will be barricaded at noon today. The barricades will carry notices that the closing is due to the forest fire emergency.

Robinson reported he flew over the district yesterday and said no forest fires were burning in the area.

The only fire reported was in Mt. Pocono where firemen extinguished a grass and brush fire on Fairview Ave. at 7 p.m. Firemen said the blaze was started by someone burning leaves.

Woods Fires Spread; No Rain In Sight

CHICAGO (AP) — New forest and woodland fires broke out in the arid East on Thursday and the spreading autumn drought took more bites out of farm production and cut hydroelectric power output in New England.

Definite indications that arsonists touched off some of the latest woodland fires in New York State, New England and Arkansas added new peril to the critical situation.

The U.S. Weather Bureau in Washington has forecast little or no rain in the eastern half of the nation for the next five days and subnormal rainfall in most of the eastern quarter of the nation for the next 30 days.

About 100 separate fires were burning in the woodlands of New York State, including 30 new outbreaks. A Conservation Department spokesman said arsonists definitely were at work in the area, although most of the fires were caused by carelessness. Fire fighters smelled kerosene at one minor fire in a mountain park near Albany.

Eighteen separate fires burned over 500 acres in New Hampshire. William Messee, director of the Division of Resources Department, said several apparently were set deliberately.

A forest fire destroyed 533 acres of timber and brush near Dierks in southwest Arkansas before it was put out. State Forester Fred Lang said it was set deliberately.

Several forest fires burned in the Allegheny Mountains of western Pennsylvania, but none was out of control. One blaze in the vicinity of Patton, in Cambria County, burned about 1,000 acres of good timber.

Some rain or showers fell in Kansas and Missouri, but not enough to relieve drought conditions that prevail from the Great Plains to New England.

The prolonged arid spell has cut hay crops, hurt the apple crop and boosted the price of livestock feed.

State News Roundup

Fires Destroy Choice Timber

ALTOONA, Pa. (AP) — Two fires which swept approximately 1,300 acres of choice timberland in the Allegheny Mountains were still burning but under control Thursday. Numerous small fires also were reported.

A spokesman for the Gallitzin district of the State Forests and Waters Department said there were a couple of dozen minor fires in Cambria County alone.

The larger of the two major blazes destroyed an estimated 1,000 acres of timber in an area near Patton in Cambria County.

The other big blaze roared over a section of Tussey Mountain in Liberty Twp., Bedford County. Mrs. Helen C. Johnston, operator of the tri-county tower on the mountain, estimated 300 acres were destroyed.

No injuries were reported in the various fires.

Mediator Steps Into Dispute

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service has intervened in a dispute between the AFL-CIO Meatcutters Union and Weis Markets, Inc., Sunbury.

Federal Mediator C. Harry Young, Harrisburg, said Thursday a joint session between company and union officials has been called for 10:30 a. m. next Tuesday at the mediation service's regional offices, Philadelphia.

The union has been picketing four stores in York and two in Lancaster in an effort to secure a contract with the Weis firm. Weis has some 1,700 employees at markets and warehouses in Central Pennsylvania counties.

State Police Hit Gambling

HARRISBURG (AP) — State Police have more than doubled their number of gambling raids this year with the promise of many more to come.

Acting on orders by Gov. Scranton to crack down on gambling where local enforcement is lax, Col. E. Wilson Purdy has revised the State Police's general orders to permit troopers to move against vice without consulting local authorities.

The sharply increased raiding tempo began in June, several months after the governor issued a general warning to a number of unidentified counties to clean up their own crime situations.

Between Jan. 1 and Oct. 10 this year State Police made 364 raids resulting in 712 arrests. Last year 175 raids were made with 373 arrests in the same period.

Judge Commits Alleged Killer

INDIANA, Pa. (AP) — An Indiana County judge, acting on a court-appointed sanity commission's report, has ordered a young man accused of killing his mother and a neighbor committed to the Fairview State Mental Hospital.

Judge Edwin M. Clark ruled Wednesday that Stephen F. Kondrat, 21, of Armagh "is insane or so mentally ill" that he isn't capable of making a rational defense.

Police said Kondrat shot his mother, Gizella Kondrat, 53, and Mrs. Reva Cramer, 50, and also wounded his father and Dr. Charles Trendenick, 65, of Johnstown last Sept. 18.

The New York Concert Trio

Trio Opens Concert Series Tuesday

EAST STROUDSBURG — The New York Concert Trio—consisting of Ardyth Alton, cello; Paul Boyer, flute, and Cynthia Otis, harp—will open the Pocono Community Concert Assn. season on Tuesday, Oct. 22, at 8 p. m. in the auditorium of East Stroudsburg State College.

Approximately 320 ESSC students will attend the series of concerts as part of music appreciation courses. The college auditorium seats 980.

The trio presents a highly original program from a rich repertoire of music composed for this combination, as well as transcriptions from more familiar works.

In addition to ensemble numbers for the entire group, the trio's repertoire includes compositions for the flute and cello, cello and harp, harp and flute as well as solos for each of the instruments.

The numbers range from the classic masters of the 18th century to contemporary composers.

The diversity is possible because each member of the trio is not only an experienced ensemble player but a virtuoso soloist.

Individually, together and as members of other concert groups they have played throughout North and Central America and Europe.

Commissioners Set Cost For Boarding Prisoners

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County commissioners yesterday established $2.06 as the cost per day of boarding prisoners in Monroe County jail when sentenced there by Judge Fred W. Davis under Bill 305.

Bill 305 was recently passed by the General Assembly. It gives the judge the authority to sentence a man to jail, and at the same time permits him to work during the day and return to jail at the end of his working day.

The prisoner's wages go toward paying county institutional board. The remainder to be doled out either to the court or the inmate's home.

In other business the commissioners met with Louis Marmo, field representative, Department of Welfare, Harrisburg, and Charles Jones, executive director, Monroe County Children's Aid Society, to discuss new child welfare regulations.

The regulations are to be placed into operation on or before Jan. 1, 1965, and are the result of legislation passed by the last General Assembly. The state laws will allow Pennsylvania to receive $2,000,000 from the federal government.

The state law allows the state to contribute up to 50 per cent of the cost in operating a child welfare agency. However, the money is not available to allow the state to contribute the 50 per cent, but it will reimburse about 18 per cent until the funds are available.

Under the regulations it is the responsibility of the county to do the following:

1. Establish a protective care agency.
2. Establish an intake and referral agency. This can be the same agency handling protective care.
3. Set up an advisory committee. This committee is recommended to have between 15 and 21 members.
4. The agency must be staffed and the staff will come under civil service.

If a county does not act on this, the state has the right to come into a county, set up the program, operate it and charge the county the entire cost of operating the agency.

The commissioners took no action, but will study the subject before taking any additional action.

Some insects have been air conditioning their homes for millions of years. Paper wasps drench their nests with cool water during particularly hot spells.

SU Teachers Hold Training Sessions

STROUDSBURG — The elementary school teachers of Stroud Union School District will be meeting today at the Arlington Heights School.

They will be concerned with methods and techniques to be used in the teaching of modern mathematics.

Guest speakers will include Hans Hollstein, who is head of the mathematics department of the Fieldston School in New York City. Hollstein is a graduate of the University of Bonn, in Bonn, Germany, and other European universities.

In this country, he has studied at Princeton University and attended special institutes in modern mathematics at Ball State Teachers College in Muncie, Ind.

Hollstein studied with Dr. Brumfiel and other professors who developed what is known as the "Ball State Teachers College Program in Modern Mathematics."

The other guest speaker will be Miss Mary Turczyn, principal of the Franklin - Jackson School, Allentown. Miss Turczyn has done considerable work in the field of modern mathematics and has been assisting with in-service workshops in the Allentown public schools.

The program will feature lectures, demonstrations and workshop periods. The newer methods in mathematics are being used in the elementary schools in Stroud Union in grades Kindergarten, 1 and 2. Some sections of third and fourth grades are using modern mathematics, and all other teachers are integrating modern math concepts with their regular program.

There will be no school for children in any of the Stroud Union schools today.

Gap Chamber Orders More Brochures

DELAWARE WATER GAP — President Layton Osborne told the Delaware Water Gap Chamber of Commerce at a meeting Monday at Hickory Valley Farm Restaurant that he has ordered 5,000 more brochures to be distributed to tourists.

Mayor Arthur Lehr, reporting for the tourist promotion committee, told the group that Mrs. Herbert Buzzard is assisting in preparation of a map and tourist booklet.

Stephen Matos, secretary, read correspondence with U. S. Sen. Joseph S. Clark on the "Vista" park, a letter thanking Harold B. Kresge of the State Highway Dept., for visiting the chamber and a letter to U. S. Sen. Hugh Scott, asking for a copy of the map and Bill 1971 relating to extension of the Appalachian Trail.

Matos also read a letter from the State Dept. of Commerce asking for listings of future events in Delaware Water Gap and a letter to the Dept. of Highways supporting a bill which affects the local tourist center, to be located off Broad St.

Osborne was authorized to appoint a membership committee of five members. Mr. and Mrs. J. Lattin, from whose lake on Mt. Minis, the borough received water during last year's drought were welcomed as guests and Lattin spoke briefly during the meeting.

SPEAKERS TONIGHT at the Mountainhome P. Of A. Hall will include these Democratic candidates for county office, l. to r.: Frank Smith, for prothonotary; James Cadue, for sheriff; Thomas Joyce, for auditor, and J. Nelson Westbrook, for register and recorder. The candidates' night will start at 8 p.m., and is under the auspices of the Barrett Democratic Men's and Women's Clubs. (Staff Photo by Cusack)

$100,000 Fire Damages Alpha-Portland Plant

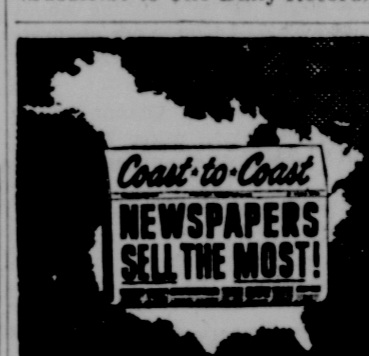

MARTINS CREEK — Fire caused an estimated $100,000 to the power station of the Martins Creek plant of the Alpha Portland Cement Co. Wednesday night, throwing about 170 employees out of work for about a month. No one was hurt.

The fire is believed to have started when a 150-kilowatt transformer exploded about 11 p.m. Cause of the explosion was not immediately determined.

According to Charles Burnett, plant manager, the blast ignited oil in one of the transformers. Firemen from Easton, Sandis Eddy and Bangor battled the blaze. Robert Blun of Brainards, an employee on duty at the time of the explosion, said he attempted to put out the fire with an extinguisher, but was unable to prevent its spreading. Six transformers were destroyed and the roof of the building caved in.

County Awards Contracts For Courthouse Renovation

STROUDSBURG — Contracts for the renovation of Monroe County Courthouse basement were awarded yesterday by the Monroe County commissioners. Bids were awarded to the lowest qualifying bidders.

Harvey Huffman of Marshalls Creek was awarded the general contractor's bid. His bid was $55,025.

H. L. Cleveland Co. of East Stroudsburg was awarded the plumbing and drainage contract at a bid of $7,175.

The electrical contract was awarded to Easton Electro Construction Co. of Wind Gap. The bid was $33,954.

D. Katz and Sons, Inc. of Stroudsburg received the heating and air conditioning contract with a bid of $33,149.

The contracts call for work to be completed in 150 calendar days starting from the day notification is received to begin work.

Additional Funds

The action was taken after Marvin E. Abel, Monroe County Civil Defense director, read the letter of notification from Robert F. Hartman, chief, Bureau of Administration Services, State Council of Civil Defense in Harrisburg, that the additional request of $16,501.50 for the project from Department of Defense, Office of Civil Defense in Washington, D.C.

The request for the additional sum was made by the commissioners on Sept. 23, 1963, after bids were opened and were found to exceed the estimated costs by $33,003. Thus, on a matching fund basis, the request for $16,501.50 was made.

The federal government had previously approved a grant of 50 per cent of the original estimate of $96,920 for the project. The notification yesterday concerned the grant for additional funds.

Additional Offices

Under the proposed renovations the courthouse will have 13 additional offices to serve the public and 2,768 additional square feet of working space.

The total floor area of the project is approximately 9,700 square feet. This includes all offices, rest rooms and dispensary.

In addition to providing CD facilities, day-to-day county offices will be provided, including an expanded probation department.

Included in the plans are new rest rooms for the public and a first-aid room. All of this space will afford adequate fall-out protection in the event of any nuclear attack.

Atty. Lewis, Dr. Sumberg Debate On Constitution

STROUDSBURG — Attorney Kenneth Lewis attacked the proposed convention to revise the state constitution last night in a debate before the Stroudsburg Business and Professional Women's Club.

"I would like to know what the new constitution will be before we get rid of the old one . . . The proponents of constitution revision don't ever tell us what the new document will be like. They just tell us what's wrong with the old one," Lewis argued.

His criticisms followed a speech by Dr. Alfred D. Sumberg, professor of social studies at East Stroudsburg State College, in which he said the 1874 constitution was written in an era of political corruption and economic depression to limit state government.

Dr. Sumberg quoted the Pennsylvania constitution of 1776 which said that whenever the "great ends of government are not obtained, the people have a right by common consent to change it."

Judicial Reform

Lewis, a former mayor of East Stroudsburg, concentrated his fire on a Pennsylvania Bar Assn. proposal to appoint rather than elect judges from the State Supreme Court down to judges of new community courts which would take the place of elected justices of the peace.

Lewis argued that the 150 delegates to be elected to the constitutional convention will be on "a maiden voyage" as constitution writers and will have to turn to others for advice.

He said the convention will inevitably turn to the complete plan for a new constitution proposed by the state bar association, including the court reform article.

"It is inconceivable that a convention will not adopt the bar association judicial proposal," Lewis asserted.

He criticized William A. Schnader, chairman of the bar association's "Project Constitution" committee, whom he called "adamant that he is going to reform the courts and the judicial system."

"Why does Schnader want to take away the right of the people to elect their judges and prothonotaries? The reason is obvious. It is a desire for power," Lewis said.

Lewis attacked the contention that having the governor appoint judges recommended by district judicial nominating commissions would take the selection of judges out of politics.

The nominating commissions would have one judge, three local lawyers elected by local bar associations and three laymen appointed by the governor.

"I don't suppose politics will have anything to do with that!" Lewis exclaimed.

Dr. Sumberg spoke first. Then Lewis addressed the meeting at the Penn-Stroud Hotel. Then Sumberg rebutted Lewis' argument and both men answered questions.

Dr. Sumberg said in his answer to Lewis' argument that "I agree fully with his position on the Pennsylvania Bar Assn."

And he added: "I have a strong feeling that the bar association does not represent the feelings of the millions of Pennsylvania citizens. I don't believe the Schnader proposal is supported by the people, and I feel strongly that courthouse officers should be elected by the people."

In answer to Lewis' argument that he would like to know what the new constitution is before the old one is thrown out, Sumberg said, "I have no preconceived idea of what the new constitution will be. The purpose of a constitutional convention is to find out what is best and write a good new constitution that will represent the views of all the people."

In his speech, Dr. Sumberg said:

"As an historian, I find that the constitution reflects the distrust of government during an era of corruption."

"The history of the presidential administration of Ulysses S. Grant, which dates from 1869 to 1877, was one of scandal after scandal."

Hilda Kitzman, vice president of the club, said ten members would attend the fall conference of Business and Professional Women this Saturday at Hazleton, Pa.

Phi Sigma Kappa Fraternity Will Open Chapter House

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Victorian house, located on the corner of Ransberry Ave. and Anolomink St. in East Stroudsburg and formerly owned by Chester Booth of East Stroudsburg, will officially become the Beta Pentaton Chapter House of Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity this Saturday.

The house was purchased by the fraternity in June of this year and has undergone extensive renovations to prepare it for occupancy this fall.

Rotarians Hear Dist. Governor

STROUDSBURG — There are more than half a million Rotary Club members in 11,600 clubs in 129 countries of the world.

Those figures were reported yesterday to the Stroudsburg Rotary Club by Edward J. Dieffenbach, governor of the Northeast Pennsylvania Rotary district.

Dieffenbach concentrated on the international service responsibilities of Rotary Club members, saying that more than half of the 11,600 clubs are outside the United States.

He described a new Rotary program for the establishment of "Interact" or international action clubs for youth service and exchange with foreign students.

Peter Wyckoff, club member who is hosting Anders Anderson of Norway, an exchange student studying at East Stroudsburg State College, reported on a Rotary exchange student program conference at Avoca Airport.

He said the Northeast Pennsylvania Rotary district had more exchange students than any other district in the United States. He said 40 district American students are studying abroad and 40 foreign students are studying in this district under the Rotary exchange program.

Dieffenbach, a member of the Montrose, Pa., Rotary Club and Susquehanna County agricultural agent, said there are 38 clubs in the northeast district with 1,450 members—the same as 15 years ago.

He urged the club to expand its membership and praised it for its 82.5 per cent attendance record.

Arraigned On Liquor Violation

SHAWNEE-ON-DELAWARE — Paul C. Grant of East Stroudsburg, RD 2, identified as the manager of "Bennickill Lodge" at Shawnee, was released in $500 bail last night at an arraignment before Mrs. Ruth E. Miller, Stroud Township Justice of the peace, on charges of permitting minors to frequent premises where liquor is sold. He will have a hearing Oct. 25.

Bennickill is operated by Shawnee Inn for its employees' recreation. The charge, brought by the State Liquor Control Board, is that Grant permitted minors to frequent on Sept. 11 and 18 and other dates.

Delaware River Below Legal Flow

MILFORD — The Delaware River has fallen below its legal minimum flow because of the extended drought throughout its basin watershed.

Robert Fish, deputy Delaware River Master for the U. S. Geological Survey, said in Milford, Pa., yesterday that the average flow of the Delaware River at the Milford gauging station for the first 16 days of October had fallen to 1,438 cubic feet of water per second.

The legal minimum set by a U. S. Supreme Court decision regulating the amount of water New York City must release into the river from its reservoir dams in upstate New York is 1,525 cubic feet per second at the Milford gauging station.

The high for October was 1,840 c. f. s. on Oct. 1. The low was 1,030 c. f. s. last Sunday, Oct. 13. The lowest reading in October was 886 c. f. s. in 1957.

Fish said the most serious effect of going below the legal minimum river flow was a salt invasion from Chesapeake Bay up the Delaware River to Philadelphia.

Norman Beamer, district chemist in the U. S. Geological Survey's Philadelphia office, told The Daily Record, "There is an unusual invasion of salinity as far as the Ben Franklin Bridge in Philadelphia."

He said chloride measurements near Philadelphia revealed 1,200 parts per million in the river water. U. S. Public Health Service maximum limit for safe human consumption is 250 parts per million, and many industrial water users require lower chloride content. During the Spring water runoff, chloride count at Philadelphia is about 30 parts per million. Chloride is the salt content of sea water.

Industries south of Philadelphia using River water for cooling and other industrial production processes have reported major problems because of the lower fresh water flow from the upper Delaware River basin.

Both major New York City dams on the East Branch of the Delaware River in New York State are at dangerously low levels and are having difficulty releasing 350 million gallons of water a day into the river to maintain the legal flow at Milford, Pa.

Edward J. Clark, chief engineer of the New York City Bureau of Water Supply, reported Tuesday that the Neversink Dam in New York State now holds only 1 billion gallons of water or 2.8 per cent of its capacity. Its companion Pepacton Dam holds only 13.6 billion gallons or 9.5 per cent of its capacity.

These two reservoirs are the major source of extra water needed to maintain the river flow at Milford.

But Fish warned that their daily dumping of 350 million gallons of water could not go on much longer.

What's A Newspaper?

The daily newspaper means many things to many people.

We make some people angry every day with a story they would prefer to have dropped in the waste basket.

"We make many people happy every day to see a story about themselves, their family, their club or the mistakes of some political enemy.

It is impossible to explain what a newspaper means to everyone, but Fred J. Curran of the Wisconsin State Journal tried. In observance of National Newspaper Week, this is what he wrote:

What, the little girl asked, is a newspaper?

It's paper with words and pictures on it.

It is made up of a lot of people, including ourselves.

It's a big event and a little event, about folks far away and folks next door.

It's happiness and tragedy, a laugh, a cry, and a song that's heard again.

It's government, from the president to congress, from the governor to the legislature, from the mayor to the city council, and all their branches—with a quizzical fellow looking over their shoulders.

It's a policeman, a fireman, and others in dangerous jobs.

It's business, it's industry; it's a front window for merchants to display their goods. It's an ad for a lost dog.

It's a record of what happened to people, of who did what, when, where, and why.

It's a description of a bride's dress; it's a newly-married couple looking for an apartment.

It's a welcome to a new pastor, a church dedication, a farewell to someone retiring after long service.

It's a home run, a long pass, a team's box score, a well-rolled bowling game.

It's a hint of a recipe, a plan for home improvement, a bit of advice for someone who's troubled.

It's the first snow, awakening spring, the hottest day of the year, and an autumn day with edges as crisp as the fallen leaves.

It's about a youngster, scuffling to and from school, and about the things he learns and does with his teachers.

It's about playgrounds and vacations, and places to go and how to get there. It's the summer fishin' hole and the beach; it's just laz'ing around.

It's growth and it's progress, new products and old standbys.

It's professional help and service; it's a note on what hospitals and clinics do.

It's a bulletin for a church, a temple a synagogue.

It's a note on a veteran's organization, a service club, an afternoon tea.

It's the greatest daily collection of words and pictures ever assembled.

It's a big story, a little story, a feature story. It's a pretty picture, a stark photo, a page of pictures of big events. It's an editor's view, a reader's disagreement, a columnist's reasoning. It's an explanation of many things. It's a crossword puzzle, a comic, a game.

It's writing that is not always literary, but it's the language people speak, because much of it is what people said.

It's a pressman in a funny paper hat, a printer deftly putting type together, an advertising salesman showing a merchant how to tell history.

It's paper with words and pictures on it.

Like this.

No, Yes, Maybe, Never

Poor old Bill Scranton has caught the presidential virus. In his Potomac delirium, he's not sure which way he is going.

In recent days he has answered a flurry of reporter's inquiries on whether he is a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination with a series of contradictory answers.

One day, he said, "No." The next day he said, "Yes." One day he said, "Never." The next day he said, "Maybe."

On Wednesday, Scranton said he is not a presidential candidate and will block any attempt to draft him. Earlier in the day he had said he would respond to a draft if it were "honest and sincere."

On Thursday, Scranton reversed the script. He said he is open to a "pure and honest" draft, but does not expect such a draft and would try to block it if it were to develop.

Poor old Bill Scranton obviously needs immediate vaccination takes effect, and dental virus, Potomac strain.

If that vaccination takes effect, and if Scranton decides he is not interested in being president of the United States, then the reporters can ask him a few questions about his interest in running for vice president.

Comment Of The Day

"The cost value of federal stockpile inventories as of June 30, 1963, totaled $13.8 billion.

"These are figures compiled from official agency data by the Joint Committee on the Reduction of Nonessential Federal Expenditures.

"Overall, there are now 94 materials stockpiled in the strategic and critical inventories. Maximum objectives in terms of volume are presently fixed for 76 of these 94 materials. Of the 76 materials having maximum objectives, 62 were stockpiled in excess of their objectives as of June 30, 1963."

—Senator Harry F. Byrd, Virginia Democrat, chairman of the Joint Committee on Reduction of Nonessential Federal Expenditures.

On The Line

Camera Ramblings

(Editor's Note: Bob Considine's On The Line will replace George Dixon's column while the latter is on two weeks vacation).

By Bob Considine

NEW YORK — Lots of travelers are always trying to cut down on their picture-taking expenses, and so I'm happy today to be able to recommend a spot where enormous savings can be effected. Go straight off to Hungary, all you eager lensmen and lens-hens, and you'll come back with enough unshot film to last you the rest of the year.

Once on the scene, instructions are simple to follow, according to a proclamation picked up at the Hungarian border by a man from Radio Free Europe.

They go like this:

"LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

"In accordance with regulations valid in this country, foreign citizens may take photographs, shoot films and make sketches of the entire territory of the Hungarian Peoples' Republic.

"However, no photographs should be taken, films shot and sketches made of defense installations set up within a 15 kilometer border zone. Unless permitted by the respective managements, no photographs, sketches or films may be taken, made or shot in industrial plants, state farms, cooperative farms, river ports, state offices, educational institutes, and in social organizations.

"It is forbidden to take photographs, make sketches or shoot films of military objects and establishments of any kind, such as railway junctions, tunnels, railway bridges, industrial plants, scientific research institutes, design offices, laboratories, power plants, radio transmitter towers, broadcasting stations, telephone and telegraph offices.

"Furthermore, it is forbidden to take air photographs and remote photographs or make sketches of industrial plants."

Do you get the feeling that they don't want pictures or sketches of industrial plants?

It's different here. Camera bugs go unbridled.

On the worst day of last winter a buff arrived, at his Madison Avenue office with icicles dripping from his hat brim. He tenderly put his camera on the radiator to thaw it, then took off his great-coat.

"What a day!" he exclaimed. "Couldn't get a taxi and the buses weren't running. Had to walk all the way across Central Park."

His friend sympathized, but that turned out to be an interruption.

"Well, sir, on a bench right in the middle of the park sat this old lady in a shawl, full of ice," the buff continued. "She said she had been out there all night. She was shaking with hunger and cold."

"The poor thing! What did you give her?"

The buff thought a moment, then remembered. "F-8 at 50," he said.

Went around the world this past month, cracking Nellie Bly's record by nearly two seconds, and found fresh confirmation that amateur photography must be the world's No. 1 hobby. All through Asia, beginning with Japan, a passer-by without a camera seemed almost as if he had emerged from his home without some major portion of his clothes, like his pants.

Astonishing advances have been made in camera technology in this country, Japan and Germany. The manufacturers with their more sensitive lenses, automatic opening, new and faster film and Lord knows what else seem to have reached and then passed on beyond the milestone marked "fool-proof."

At that rate, they're advancing on me. I'm not in the market for a fool-proof camera. They're much too complicated. I'm holding out for that happy breakthrough which produces the imbecile-proof camera. My friends Howard Young and Frank Farwell trusted me with a fool-proof Leica once. I instructed me for three hours on how to operate it, put it in its neat little leather case, and packed me off to the Olympics.

Only one thing went wrong. I couldn't get it out of the case.

The Pennsylvania Story

By Mason Denison
HARRISBURG — Reporter's Notebook:

Hootchounds and High Taxes — Prior to and after the new taxes went into effect on liquor in the Keystone State there were many who maintained dire predictions as to: (a) an impending slump in liquor sales (consumption); (b) a frightening drop in state revenues as a result of pooped liquor sales; and (c) a return (literal, of course) to the old rum-running and bootlegging days of yore.

What has actually happened — particularly in light of earlier (premature) reports of stupefying sales drop-offs? . . . Here are some points worth noting, gleaned from the State Liquor Control Board itself this week:

The new sales tax rate of 5 per cent, which applies also to liquor, went into effect in June. . . . To "beat the tax" liquor buyers in the preceding month of May stashed in their hootch cellars enough of the stuff to boost sales 18 per cent over a year ago. . . . In June (when the new tax rate went into effect) sales at state stores dropped off 4½ per cent and another 5½ per cent during the following month of July. . . . (This was when the gloom-boomers really started their "I-told-you-so" chant).

On top of all this, in August the 15 per cent liquor tax went into effect — but sales during August were only one-half a per cent less than August a year ago. . . . Now, add up the four-month period covering the before-and-after-tax debacle — and the final net result shows that sales went up almost 2 per cent, rather than the loss as earlier premature published reports had indicated!

What do these taxes mean to the average Pennsylvanian? . . . About $85,000,000 a year goes into the state fiscal pot — which otherwise would have to be made up via other tax means (such as a higher sales tax rate?).

College Classroom Trot — Somewhat phenomenal has been the enrollment upswing in Pennsylvania's 14 state-owned State Colleges (formerly state teachers colleges, formerly state normal schools) during the past ten years, a check this week with the Department of Public Instruction shows.

For example, a survey of enrollment figures this year indicates a record enrollment of 30,600 undergraduate students on the 14 campuses. . . . This represents an increase of approximately 2,600 over last year's enrollment of 27,900.

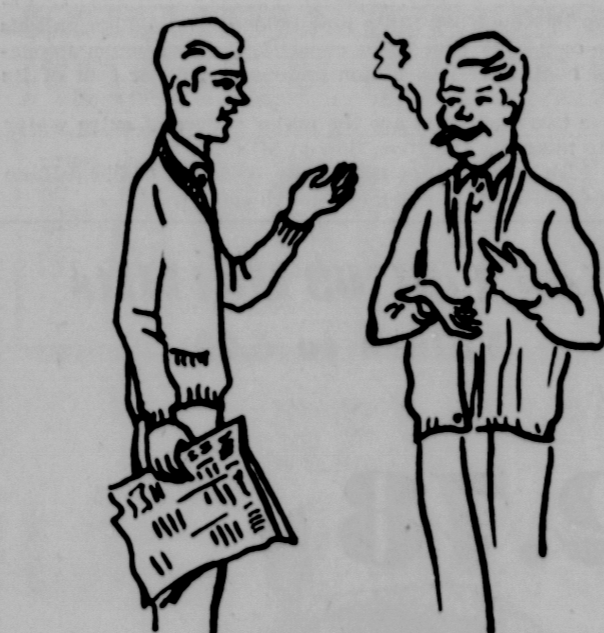

But — it is tripple the 9728 enrollment at the 14 State Colleges for the 1953-54 school year!

(Interestingly, the prediction of 60,000 undergraduates by 1970 as foreseen by the Governor's Committee on Education, seemingly is not out of line in view of the number of high school graduates now going to college. . . . The number of high school graduates going on to college has increased from 19 per cent in 1950 to 28 per cent in 1960.)

Dropping - In The Drop-Outs — The "war" against high school drop-outs apparently is having some degree of success, according to people in the State Department of Public Instruction, who reported this week that the "anti-dropout" program conducted in late August and early September in cities throughout the Nation at the expense of the President's Emergency Fund appears to have met with some success.

Approximately $12,000 of the $250,000 made available went to three districts in Pennsylvania — Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Nesheim. . . . A total of 2345 drop-outs were contacted in the three districts — and of this number 1993 were talked into returning to school! . . . (Where's Nesheim? . . . It's in Bucks County!)

Add Motel Accommodations! — When the new museum-building circular State Museum ($9.2 million) is completed, school children arriving by bus to tour the Museum will disembark from their yellow vehicles on the ground floor at an entrance inside the huge five-story structure!

Answers To Arguments On Constitution Revision

(This is one of a series of answers to arguments against the Nov. 5 referendum on calling a convention to revise the Pennsylvania constitution. It was prepared by the Monroe-Pike County Committee for Constitutional Revision and the League of Women Voters of the Stroudsburgs. Both groups are working for a yes vote.)

Argument: Public debt will skyrocket if the $1 million limit on state debt and seven per cent limit on municipality debt are removed.

Answer: Public debt has skyrocketed in spite of the present constitution.

A. The state and local debt limits don't allow for necessary government expenditures such as new schools, mental hospitals, sewer and water systems that have been built by extra-legal authorities anyway.

B. There is no voter approval needed to control the personnel or amount of spending by authorities. The effect therefore of the unrealistic state constitutional debt limits has been to have no limit on state debt at all.

C. Authority borrowing, amounting to about $1.5 billion at the state level and about $1.5 billion at the local level has cost about one per cent more in higher interest rates than state government financed projects.

WASHINGTON—A military coup in oil-rich, Communist-threatened Venezuela will be immediately countered by armed U.S. intervention.

Unlike Honduras and the Dominican Republic, where U.S. reaction against the recent coup consisted of withdrawing its ambassadors and cutting off economic and military aid, armed forces would be rushed to Venezuela to restore constitutional government.

President Kennedy has definitely decided on that, and has so informed the State and Defense Departments and leaders of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

President Romulo Betancourt also has been told of

The Allen-Scott Report

Venezuela Plans

this momentous decision. He is ready to formally request U.S. intervention in the event of the overthrow of his long-embattled regime.

In preparation for possible recourse to U.S. troops, the administration already has set the wheels in motion to get Senate backing for such explosive action.

For this purpose a bipartisan anti-junta resolution has been sponsored by Senator Wayne Morse, D-Ore., head of the Foreign Relations subcommittee in Latin America, and Senator Jacob Javits, R-N.Y. The proposal calls for three measures to counter military coups:

(1) "Denial of diplomatic recognition;" (2) "cancellation of U.S. assistance programs to regimes established by military juntas;" (3) "authorize the President to cooperate with and assist any nation or group of nations in the protection of its territorial integrity and political independence from aggression or subversion by any nation or from any source controlled by international Communism."

The last provision is the most significant and far-reaching. It opens the way for armed intervention by the U.S.

That is the view of Senate Democratic Whip Hubert Humphrey, Minn., who favors such forceful action in Venezuela in behalf of President Betancourt. Governor Munoz-Marin of Puerto Rico also strongly advocates it.

What's Behind It—President Kennedy made his decision to intervene militarily in Venezuela because of three impelling factors:

Urgent intelligence and diplomatic warnings that Venezuelan military leaders are prepared to seize control and depose Betancourt because of growing fears of a Communist uprising led by Castro agents. Betancourt's term expires at the end of this year following a national election in December. Under vigorous military prodding he finally cracked down on Castro terrorists. The military are demanding still more drastic measures and Betancourt, who has a leftist background, is on the spot.

A military coup in Venezuela would almost certainly lead to similar governmental overthrows in Brazil, Colombia and El Salvador. In each of these countries, powerful military elements are increasingly restive over the growing infiltration and strength of Communists in the existing governments. All these governments are definitely threatened by military take-overs. A coup in Venezuela could touch off a chain reaction.

A barrage of caustic criticism by Democratic senators charging the administration with lacking a cohesive and sound policy in Latin America, and assailing the bumbling Alliance for Progress. Senators Morse and Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, in repeated blasts asserted that more coups would mean the total disintegration of the Alliance—on which some $2 billion already has been spent.

Another factor is the President's personal high regard for Betancourt. At a meeting this week of the National Security Council, top policy-making agency of the government, the President declared his firm determination to do everything possible to enable Betancourt to last out his term and to hold a free election for a successor.

"I consider the Betancourt government the best in Latin America," said the President. "He has held out against tremendous odds and provocations, and we cannot stand idly by and permit him to be destroyed just as he is winding up. He deserves a better fate than that, and I propose to see to it that he gets it. Whatever it takes, I'm ready to do."

Governor Munoz-Marin has been vigorously encouraging the President in that stand. The veteran Puerto Rican leader, who has given refuge to deposed Dominican President Juan Bosch, has had a number of telephone conferences with the President on the explosive Latin American situation.

Munoz-Marin is strongly advocating armed U. S. intervention against military coups. That is also being urged by Costa Rica's Foreign Minister Daniel Oduber, close friend of Betancourt. Attending the meeting of the UN General Assembly, Oduber is quoted as saying, "A constitutional president has the right to ask for outside military help when anything threatens hemisphere peace. That is clearly stated in the Treaty of Rio de Janeiro. Free governments must stop coups by either the military or the Communists."

In one of Senator Morse's critical speeches, he portrayed the Alliance for Progress as follows:

"The Alliance for Progress program is irreconcilable with dictatorship. The Alliance for Progress program is irreconcilable with military juntas. The Alliance for Progress program is irreconcilable with aiding at any time dictatorial regimes that have destroyed democratic constitutions anywhere in Latin America."

Dear Abby

A Teacher Speaks!

DEAR ABBY: Will you please publish in your column the correct dress for high school girls? We teachers have tried to set some standards of dress, but so many parents complained that the Board of Education wouldn't uphold us. In our high school, over half the girls come to classes in everything from the shortest shorts to tight stretch pants. I have had girls in my classes for nine months, five days a week, whom I've never seen in skirts. High school boys are not mature enough to control the natural emotions stirred up by the sight of all this nakedness and revealing outlines of feminine figures. It is no wonder more and more high school girls are forced to leave school because of pregnancy. If mothers could see how their daughters behave in unladylike dress, they wouldn't let them out the door.

A TEACHER,
Oskaloosa, Iowa.

DEAR TEACHER: A few years ago a study of several schools was made, and it was learned that discipline was improved sometimes 100 per cent when dress was improved. It is not up to the school authorities to dictate dress, hair styles, make-up, etc. Parents should make these personal decisions. BUT, in the absence of old-fashioned common sense and good judgment from home, a committee should be set up at school, composed of a few parents, a few teachers and several students—the latter elected by the student body. And it should recommend standards of reasonable attire—although it would not, obviously, have legal authority to enforce its findings. Any comment?

DEAR ABBY: My problem is in the form of a pet peeve. My husband has been using an expression for the past unpteen years that is driving me crazy. It's "not bad." Nothing is ever "good, fair, wonderful" or "great." It is always "not bad." He is practically perfect in every way, but when I ask him how I look, and he gives me that "not bad" answer, I want to scream. How can I break him of this habit?

GOING CRAZY

DEAR ABBY: Let him have his little flaw. You would only feel inferior if you had a perfect husband. Personally, I'd say he's not bad!

CONFIDENTIAL TO BOB: I don't know whether a man is permitted to marry while he is serving time in the County jail. Even though the girl is pregnant, she is under age, and I can't blame her parents for opposing the marriage. Ask to see the chaplain, and let him advise you.

Speaking Of Your Health:

Teenagers Can Improve Posture

The Posture of an adult usually reflects the posture taught him or acquired by him as a child and adolescent. An attractive posture is important to one's own physical image of himself.

Delicate grace of movement and general appearance, so significant in today's competitive society, can be enhanced by special attention to early training.

The mechanical structure of the body is not a rigid, inflexible bones and joints, normally in good alignment, must be maintained in their correct position by actively working for good posture.

Acquired By Training Assuming that an individual has no special curvature of the spine, dislocation of the hips or other anatomical disturbances, he can obtain good posture with training.

While walking, standing, sitting or carrying heavy parcels, there is an ideal position of the body that every teenager can easily acquire by following some simple suggestions.

The Department of Education of the American Medical Association has compiled an excellent outline of practical rules for better posture. Wallace A. Wesley, writing for the A.M.A., has made the following contribution to better health through better posture. Psychological as well as physical benefits should accrue if these suggestions are followed:

STANDING:
1. Feet slightly apart; weight balanced on both feet; toes straight ahead.
2. Knees straight, relaxed.
3. Hips tucked; abdomen flat.
4. Chest slightly up and forward.

5. Neck and head balanced over the body, chin in; stretch up at the back of the neck and head.

WALKING: (shoes must fit)
1. Toes straight ahead.

2. Feet parallel and close together as you step.

3. Push forward with the back foot.

4. Control the length of the step for an even, rhythmic stride.

5. Place the heel first in stepping, followed by the outside portion of the sole and by the forefoot.

6. Swing arms easily.

SITTING:
1. Feet flat on floor.
2. Thighs supported by chair as far as the curve of the knee.

3. Back supported by chair back; body straight from hips to neck.

WORKING:
1. Stand erect, balanced and relaxed.

2. Correct working heights to prevent slumping or excessive reaching.

3. Lifting:

A. Stand close to the object.

B. Draw it close to your center of gravity.

C. Lift with the strong muscles of legs, shoulders.

D. Shift body to accommodate added weight.

These columns are designed to relieve your fears about health through a better understanding of your mind and body. All the hopeful new advances in medicine reported here are known to doctors everywhere.

Your individual medical problems should be handled by your own doctor. He knows you best.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

If pressed, I could probably justify being almost anywhere in the interests of gathering news. Unlikely as it seems the bowling lanes are an excellent source, at least when the Skitters are bowling.

Two of the newest additions to the ranks of grandmothers, Audrey Cohen and Henri Baldwin, were bowling yesterday and right well, too. If you twist their arm, they'll tell you the latest news from the nursery. The greatest suffering that grandmothers go through, evidently, is the lack of corroboration of just how beautiful, smart and advanced their babies are. Hebble Maisner and I can both back up Henri Baldwin, but Audrey's is still so new we haven't had a chance.

News of the next stage came from Elaine Martin, still panting and puffing from chaperoning a Girl Scout camp-out at Lloyd Triebel. They'd gone to earn their cooking badges but with the ban on burning, they didn't even cook inside, but being Girl Scouts were probably prepared — unless they ate everything raw.

And under household notes came the discussion between Bette McCambridge and Stephanie Manhart on the Green Thumb's instructions on how to save the black walnuts which are lining the Barrett roadides. They were debating just what was a corn-husker and would an apple-corer work just as well for husking them.

And finally, there was the letter from Cynthia Watt in Florida everybody was sharing, including the precautions everybody had taken for the arrival of Flora. They were awfully glad she didn't arrive, Cynthia said, but still confessed that there was a certain anticlimax about it, too—like having the refrigerator full and the house all cleaned for a pernickety relative who decides at the last minute she can't make it.

TRAVELING INTERIOR DESIGN—The beam across the ceiling and the seat on the floor are the only clues that tell you that this is a double width trailer, ready to telescope when you pack up for the next move. The interior is designed by Martin Kuckley, AID for the Divco-Wayne Corp. and is one of 86 exhibits on view at the Decoration and Design Show in New York's Coliseum, which closes Sunday.

Home Show This Year Is For Homemakers

By Ethel G. Romm
Ottaway News Service
NEW YORK—The best home show in the country is playing the New York Coliseum. The Decoration and Design Show, now in its fourth year, was conceived as a showcase for the products of the Recourses Council and the talents of decorators in the American Institute of Interior Design. It is finally living up to its promise.

Always gorgeous and full of ideas, in the past it has been a lopsided affair, offering a tiny portion of far-out modern and a glut of the helping of reproduced and bastardized traditional, with scarcely a tidbit for wholesome nice people who like beautiful things, whatever the style. This year the layout of the show helps you get more out of it. Before, as in most exhibitions, you had to shift gears so fast as you walked from a modern frou-frou bedroom to a fine living room filled with antiques that both the pretty bedroom and the rare living room jarred the senses. Now five marvelous rooms have been arranged in a separate Antiques Pavilion, entered through extraordinary old Venetian doors from French & Co. that create the mood necessary to seeing these rooms as places to live in. Anyone interested in rare rugs, furniture, porcelain, and other old accessories will have the unusual opportunity of seeing them in settings designed to be lived in. The rooms were put together by decorators specializing in 18th century styles and using things from the leading members of the Art Dealers League of America as well as the New York Art and Antique Dealers Association.

For those like the traditional way but without antiques, nothing is more important than getting a well-made, line for line copy. The manufacturers who are licensed to copy Williamsburg furnishings finally took a good look at their customers instead of their sources. In other years, we saw rapid almost-true-to-the-original-room settings—the kind of thing that nobody who loved this style would dream of doing in her own house. This year, four facing rooms using the 18th century reproductions are shown in contemporary settings, with 20th century art and conveniences. It would be nice to see this group in its own pavilion next time.

The popular hit of the show is the collapsible trailer with two bedrooms, complete with furniture for $7,900. It even has a portable garden complete with a packable fountain. When you want to move to a ski lodge or a southern beach, fold up the wide rooms, hire a truck, and meet the house at trail's end. If trailer design keeps up this pace, the whole home show field will have to refocus.

The National D & D Show runs through Sunday, Oct. 20. Location: The Coliseum, 59th and Broadway in New York City. Viewing hours: 11 A.M. to 10 P.M. daily. Admission: $2.00.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

Let's face it: most of us go bumbling through life, hoping in some mysterious way to stub our toes on the Pot of Gold at the end of the rainbow so that the contents will slosh out all over us. In a few isolated cases, this may happen. But only in a few isolated cases. Nevertheless, we are enduringly hopeful, and never cease considering the happy improbability. That's why, I suppose, we are such suckers for anything that even remotely falls under the heading of "Good luck charm."

Just the other day, I encountered one of our busy executives and said I needed some advice. "I have troubles," I grumbled. He grunted. "YOU have troubles! So you're not alone... I have troubles." I agreed this was probably true. "But an executive is a trouble shooter," I reminded him amiably. "You're right," he agreed, taking aim with his forefinger. "Bang, bang, bang. Your troubles are over... now lie down and play dead."

Another executive, taking it all in, suddenly extended his hand and said, "Mrs. Maloney—here is a good luck charm. This will solve all your problems if any arise again." He handed me a tiny green ceramic pixie. I can't say that it has brought me any luck or solved any of my headaches... but I'd like to believe that it will. Hope springs eternal!—and if my elephant with the upturned trunk... my rabbit's foot... my plastic encased four leaf clover... and my jade earrings have failed me, there's no reason on earth to suspect the pixie will. Is there???

Speaking of good luck charms, I am sure art connoisseurs must have seen the unusual ivory figures from India in our International Gift Center. I won't say the artist's conception of the feminine figure is yours or mine... but there is no doubt that these ivory carvings are unique and precious.

One is particularly appealing. The statue (about five or six inches high) is encased in its own velvet-lined box. It represents Laxmi... Goddess of Wealth. Now there is something all superstitious souls should most certainly have in their homes! The only trouble is, you have to be reasonably wealthy to buy Laxmi. The price tag reads 48.00.

Scarf pins, in the manner of the stick pins gentlemen once wore, are now much in favor with women, and we have had a nice selection from Coro at 2.00. These are floral and leaf shapes, either gold or silver finish. From Coro too, comes gold or silver lariats with interesting swirled-leaf slides, also 2.00. Matching earrings are the same price.

The style for men is, of course, the tie tac, and we have some highly appealing styles. In fact, the girls love 'em to wear on their scarves... particularly when they come in sets of three at just 1.00, as do our Coro pooches.

Since it's just a step from our Jewelry Department into Lingerie and Corsets, I would like to call your attention to the way in which those two departments are coordinating these days. Cora Albertson is now stocking petti pants, slips and half slips by Vanity Fair in colors that can be matched with Vanity Fair girdles, panty girdles and bras from our Corset department. Leopard... brilliant reds... beige tones and many others are available, and our customers love 'em. One of our Wyckoff employees tells us her Vanity Fair bra is the sleekest fitting, most comfortable she's ever worn—and it was priced less than 4.00. It's good to see this pleasant "intimate relationship" between our two "intimate apparel" departments. Do take notice!

Stroud Union Meets Bangor In 'Battle Of The Injured'

BANGOR — What happens when two injury-riddled football teams meet each other? This is the question which has been raised in the State Belt area and the answer will come tonight when visiting Stroud Union tangles with Bangor High at Bangor Stadium starting at 8 p.m.

Bangor coach Andy Mocony has been beset with injuries all season. For Stroud Union's Jerry Stulgaitis, the injury list has cropped up all at once — the result of last week's hard-fought battle against Pen Argyl. Stulgaitis, however, has taken the casualties in stride and philosophically: "We've lost some good boys, but let's go to work" is his theme.

Meanwhile, the Slayers have not played one game this year while at full strength.

To further harass the Bangor coaching staff even more is the fact that many of the boys are doubtful participants against the Mountaineers tonight.

Fullback Sherwood Heard failed to play against Wilson Boro last week and it is questionable if he'll be ready for tonight's clash. He was injured in the first quarter against East Stroudsburg and has yet to return to action.

Also listed as doubtful are quarterback Jim Dietz and halfback Bill Yeager who sat out part of the Wilson game due to an injury.

Add to these guard Anthony Priori who has not played a game all season; tackle Richard Jones who came up limping Tuesday during rehearsals, and center Glenn Grigg who also was injured in the Wilson game.

At Stroudsburg, meanwhile, halfback Glenn Bisbing, tackle Bill Burnett and guard Larry Ford wound up on the casualty list during the thrilling 14-13 win by Pen Argyl over the Mountaineers.

Bisbing is out with a broken arm; Burnett suffered a shoulder separation and Ford has torn ligaments of the knee.

Both coaches feel they have their work cut out for them, however. Neither is taking the opposition lightly.

Mocony, hoping that at least some of the team's ill may be corrected by tonight, says he is "positive" that a full-strength team will be needed "to make a worthy showing."

Stulgaitis calls Bangor a "tough, quick and spirited ball-club."

He adds: "They've shown a lot of improvement and a lot of determination. This is as strong a team as any we've been playing. . . . Their performance has changed our thinking on them."

"We're ready, though. . . . We've worked real hard this year and we've had to."

His summation of the game: "We know it's a tough one. If they get it they'll have had to work for it, and if we get it we'll have had to work for it. It's as simple as that."

Grand Jury Brought In On Death Of Heavyweight

BALTIMORE (AP)—A grand jury investigation of the death of Baltimore boxer Ernie Knox started Thursday on the basis of a medical examiner's report the body weighed only 153 pounds, 25 less than listed for the heavyweight fight Monday night.

Knox was knocked out in the ninth round of the bout by Wayne Bethea of New York, whose weight was recorded officially as 205.

Jack Cohen, executive secretary of the Maryland Athletic Commission, supervisory agency of boxing, was summoned along with records by the grand jury.

Prompts Inquiry

Dr. Charles S. Petty, assistant medical examiner, issued the report that prompted William J. O'Donnell, city prosecutor, to have a grand jury inquiry.

"We decided we'd better show the grand jury what we have so far and let it decide if further action is necessary," O'Donnell said.

The body of Knox was sent to the city morgue after his death Wednesday morning in Provident Hospital.

"All you had to do was look at the body to see it didn't weigh 178 pounds," Dr. Petty said. "It is inconceivable that the guy just didn't weigh that much."

Checks Scales

He said to make certain, the body was weighed three times and in between the scale was checked for accuracy.

"I would consider it highly unusual if the victim lost more than five or six pounds in the two days which elapsed between the time he was weighed for the fight and the time I weighed his body," Dr. Petty said.

Cohen and Dr. Charles J. Tommasello, one of two athletic commission physicians attending the weigh-in of the fighters Monday afternoon, both agreed a boxer would lose only about three or four pounds in nine rounds.

Dr. Tommasello said he could not estimate how much weight Knox might lose during the 28 hours he was in a coma in the hospital.

The doctor and Cohen both confirmed that the 26-year-old Knox weighed 178 pounds Monday afternoon.

Sandy Koufax (Who Else?) Posts Lowest ERA In NL

NEW YORK (AP)—Left-hander Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers, posting a 1.88 average—the lowest in the National League in 20 years—captured the NL's earned run title for the second straight season in 1963.

Figures compiled by the Associated Press also showed that rookie Gary Peters of the Chicago White Sox, another left-hander, won the American League championship with a 2.33 mark, Peters is the first AL rookie to finish on top in the ERA competition since Cleveland's Gene Bearden in 1948.

Koufax, a 25-game winner, allowed only 63 earned runs in 311 innings and pitched 11 shutouts—the big league high. He led in 1962 with a 2.54 ERA. The Dodgers' ace is also the first National League pitcher to win two consecutive ERA titles since Bucky Walters of Cincinnati in 1939-40.

Best Since '43

Koufax 1963 average was the lowest in the NL since 1943, when Howie Pollet of St. Louis, another lefty, finished with 1.75. Hal Newhouser of the Detroit Tigers paced the American in 1945 with 1.81.

Peters yielded 63 earned runs in 243 innings while winning 19 games and losing 8. He had four shutouts.

Dick Ellsworth of the Chicago Cubs was the National League runner-up with a 2.10 average. The young southpaw won 22 and lost 10.

Juan Pizarro of the White Sox finished second in the American League with 2.39.

Name Radatz Top AL Soph

NEW YORK (AP)—Dick Radatz, the big relief specialist who won 15 games and appeared in 66 for the seventh-place Boston Red Sox, was named the American League's outstanding sophomore for 1963 in the annual Associated Press Poll Thursday.

Radatz, nicknamed the Monster because of his size—6-foot-6 and 235 pounds—and powerful pitching, collected 15 votes in the balloting by baseball writers.

Radatz was followed by four New York Yankees—pitcher Jim Bouton, 11 votes; first baseman Joe Pepitone, 9; outfielder Tom Tresh, 8 and pitcher Al Downing, 3. Jim Fregosi, the Los Angeles Angels' shortstop, was named on two ballots.

Radatz, in addition to his 15 victories against six losses, saved 17 games and struck out 162 in 332 2/3 innings. The 26-year-old strongbow from Royal Oak, Mich. had a 9-6 record as a rookie.

Commission, supervisory agency of boxing, was summoned along with records by the grand jury.

Rakestraw Vs. Mira Miami To Get Passing Test

MIAMI (AP) — Miami's football team has proved it can stop a running attack. But the Hurricanes have yet to prove they can handle a good passer.

They will face one Friday night when Georgia's Larry Rakestraw opens fire in the Orange Bowl. Rakestraw leads the Southeastern Conference in passing.

Steve Tenst of Florida State whipped Miami with passes in the first game of the season. Since then, three running teams—Purdue, Tulane and LSU—have managed to score only three points among them against Miami's rugged ground defense.

Big Night?

If Coach Andy Gustafson hasn't improved his pass defense since the Florida State game, Rakestraw could have a big night. But he may need plenty of points to keep on top of Miami's quarterback, George Mira.

Against LSU last week, Mira returned to the form that made him All-America last season, but penalties and fumbles of his passes handicapped him.

The Miami-Georgia game is the only major feature on the college schedule Friday night, but there will be plenty of action on the Saturday program when Texas defends its newly-won top national rating against Arkansas at Little Rock.

Important Game

Wisconsin plays at Iowa in an important Big Ten Conference game, while Ohio State goes out to the Saturday program to take Southern California at Los Angeles.

Pittsburgh, which ranks third behind Texas and Wisconsin in this week's Associated Press poll, is at West Virginia, and Mississippi plays at Tulane.

Other top games include Kansas at Oklahoma, Minnesota at Illinois, Auburn at Georgia Tech, Alabama vs. Tennessee at Birmingham, Navy and VMI in the Oyster Bowl at Norfolk, Va. and Miami of Ohio at Northwestern.

Manager Alvin Dark of the San Francisco Giants and his three coaches—Whitey Lockman, Larry Jansen and Wes Westrum—formerly played for the New York Giants.

Favorites Fall At Sahara

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The favorites fell, and so did a torrential 10-minute rain late in the day as young Al Geiberger led the way through the first round of the $70,000 Sahara Invitational Golf Tournament Thursday with a four-under-par 67.

Leaving the co-favorites, Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, to trail with respective scores of 71 and 75, the 26-year-old Geiberger played the par 36-35-71 Paradise Valley Country Club in 35-32-67.

The desert rainstorm hit when about one-quarter of the field was still on the course.

Wall Not Fazed

Among them were Nicklaus, who had had his troubles long before and needed 40 shots on the first nine, and Art Wall Jr. of Pocono Manor.

Wall was on the 18th when the storm struck, but it didn't hurt him. He sank a 40-foot putt for a birdie.

Wall, with nines of 34-34, finished in a tie with Gay Brewer, 35-33, and Lionel Hebert, 32-36, in the 68th bracket.

Last week's percentage was 755 with 31 right, 9 wrong and two ties. Overall we've picked 126 right, 34 wrong and five ended in ties for .787 average.

Butler Picked Over Quips In Top Scholastic Action

HARRISBURG (AP)—Anyone have a computer?

Here's the problem: Butler is 6-0, Aliquippa 5-0. Butler has conquered Aliquippa three straight years, but the Quips have allowed only one touchdown this season.

Butler holds the home field advantage but Aliquippa is just as good away as it is at home.

Butler has beaten Farrell, Sharon and Ellwood City, but so has Aliquippa.

The two clash headon Friday in a battle that could decide the 1963 WPIAL-Class AA football championship.

over Elizabeth-Forward, Johnstown Bishop McCort over Westmont Hilltop, Altoona over Indiana, Ellwood City over Ambler, Beaver Falls over Farrell, New Castle over Erie Strong Vincent, New Kensington over Har-Brack, Uniontown over Mount Lebanon, Bedford over McDowell, Greenville over Grove City, Meadville over Titusville, Franklin over Oil City, Erie-nut over Erie Academy.

Last week's percentage was 755 with 31 right, 9 wrong and two ties. Overall we've picked 126 right, 34 wrong and five ended in ties for .787 average.

Picks Butler

What's the answer? Our pick is BUTLER — but don't bet money on it.

Other selections (also without benefit of a computer): Penn Hills over Johnstown — Penn Hills beat McKeesport 20-19, McKeesport beat Johnstown 50-0.

McKeesport over Monessen — Tiger quarterback Bob Bazyak now has completed 90 of 158 passes for 1,377 yards and 15 touchdowns — all in six games.

Harrisburg Harris over Central Dauphin—18th in a row for the Pioneers, but their toughest battle to date.

Williamsport over Reading — Millionaires continue to challenge Harrisburg Harris domination in Central Penn Conference.

Chief Logan over DuBois—The unbeaten, once tied Mings were supposed to be rebuilding this year, but they already look rebuilt.

More On Mutual Funds

By William A. Doyle
Q. Why should anybody bother to buy shares of mutual funds (open-end investment companies) when it is possible to buy shares of close-end investment companies?
A. When a person buys shares of a mutual fund, he usually must pay what amounts to a "premium" — the asset value per share plus a sales commission (load) of perhaps 8½ per cent. The shares of most closed-end investment companies can be purchased at "discounts" — below asset value.

The trend seems to be for the discounts on closed-end investment company shares to become smaller and smaller, slowly but surely. I have owned shares of about a dozen different closed-end investment companies and have always sold them at a profit. What is your reaction?

A. It's hardly any secret that the growing popularity of mutual funds can be traced to salesmanship. Mutual fund organizations put in a good deal of effort in merchandising their shares.

Whether you, personally, approve of it or not salesmanship can be the key to increased business for any product or industry.

Also, mutual funds have been way ahead of closed-end investment companies in providing certain conveniences that appeal to the investing public — steady investment programs, withdrawal plans, easy reinvestment of dividends and capital — gains distributions, etc.

If everyone agreed with you, everyone would want to buy shares of closed-end investment companies. And that would send the market prices of the closed-enders shares up to premiums — above asset values per share.

But most closed-end investment companies' shares have always sold at discounts. When you buy them, you pay less than asset value. When you sell them, you receive less than asset value.

You may be very surprised to learn that you are dead wrong on one point. Discounts on closed-end investment companies' shares have changed over the years. But recently (certainly in 1963) those discounts have become much bigger.

Why? I don't know. There's no logical reason for it—considering the fact that most closed-enders have shown good performance by increasing their asset values per share.

Stroud Union High School Plans Open House Monday

STROUDSBURG The annual "open house" at Stroud Union High School, sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association, will be held on Monday evening, October 21, beginning at 7:00 p.m.

As in years past, the open house will take the form of a "back-to-school" night, with parents reporting to their children's classes during the evening, thus familiarizing themselves with students' routine.

While in "class" they meet their children's instructors and hear a quick review of what is done in the subject, with details being given about major pieces of work like book reports, themes, and special projects with the dates they are due.

Plans for the evening call for the building to be opened at 7:00 p.m. with the first half hour devoted to enrolling parents as members of PTA and taking subscriptions for the PTA magazine, with the help of Future Teachers Association members.

"Classes" will begin at 7:30 and will conclude at 9:00 p.m. On hand to assist parents in finding their way about the building will be PTA members. Parents will be able to follow their son's or daughter's daily program on a sheet to be prepared in school on Monday by each student and taken to his or her parents at the close of the day.

Freshman homeroom mothers, Mrs. Lester Warner, mother-in-law, will provide refreshments in the cafeteria at the close of "classes." Mrs. Willard Kinz, Jr., is chairman of the high school homeroom mothers. Mrs. Guy Dean will be in charge of membership enrollment. Mrs. Joseph Small is in charge of publications.

Mrs. Parke Kunkle is faculty adviser of the Future Teachers Association. Gordon Taylor, president of the local teachers association, and Clinton Warner represented the high school staff in planning the evening. H. Wilbur Woodley serves as high school faculty representative on the PTA executive board.

Stroud Union High School PTA officers are as follows: Darrel Gehris, president; Mrs. Harold G. Walz, recording secretary; Mrs. Elmer Veety, corresponding secretary; Mr. H. Kenneth Lee, treasurer.

Sportsmen Will View Game Film

STROUDSBURG -- A movie, "The White Tail Deer" will be shown at the game dinner of the Pocono County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs Saturday. The dinner will be held in the West End Firehouse and will start at 6:30 p.m. Thomas Carson, president of the club, said yesterday.

The aim of the dinner is to acquaint the public with the work being done by the club. Speakers will be Loring Cramer, commission member from Northeastern Pennsylvania; Glen Bowers, deputy executive director, Pennsylvania Game Commission, and Roy Trexler, supervisor of Northeast Division, Pennsylvania Game Commission.

Tickets are available at Riddick's Taxidermist, Readers Hotel, Lim's Sport Shop, Arlington Diner, Newberry's lunch counter and Wyckoff's gift wrap department.

Fish in the deep regions of the sea have fantastic lighting effects. Some wear luminous spots along their sides, suggesting lighted portholes in tiny ocean liners. Others have huge glowing eyes and taillights.

Bachman Oil Co. Will Participate In Conference

EAST STROUDSBURG — Bachman Oil Company, a local area distributor of Flying A petroleum products and automotive accessories with headquarters at East Stroudsburg, Pa., will have representation at a special one-day conference of Tidewater Oil Company purchase and sale distributors to be held Thursday, Oct. 24, at Skytop Lodge in Pennsylvania's famed Pocono Mountains.

According to Edward L. Beamon, Middle Atlantic distributor marketing manager for Tidewater, the meeting is being held to discuss current marketing problems, distributor relations, and to formulate operating plans for the balance of the year.

Beamon will act as moderator of a panel of Tidewater eastern division executives who will discuss oil distribution subjects raised by the Flying A distributors. The morning business session will continue through lunch, with sport and social activities planned later.

George Lashak Elected To Executive Committee

EAST STROUDSBURG — George Lashak of the East Stroudsburg Hardware Company, Inc., was elected to the Executive Committee of the Liberty Trustworthy Stores, Inc., a group of independent dealers sponsored by Supplement-Biddle-Steltz Company, of Philadelphia, at their annual fall membership meeting at the Marriott Motor Hotel recently.

Liberty Trustworthy Stores, Inc., are a group of independent dealers who cover a 35 county area. Group buying permits them to purchase products considerably below the market price and these worthwhile savings are passed on to the customers. Lashak was chosen to represent his fellow-dealers in planning the groups' advertising and promotion programs.

Lashak joined the East Stroudsburg Hardware Company, Inc., in June 1951, upon his graduation from Pennsylvania University with the degree of Bachelor of Science in Chemical Engineering.

America's first globe maker was James Wilson, a little-educated farmer who sold $310 worth of his livestock for an encyclopedia to study cartography, mathematics, geography and astronomy.
